

ABSTRACT

A universal auction specification system including a network-accessible set of trading primitives ("TPs") and a script generator for combining the set of TPs into a temporal protocol script representing a particular auction specification. The system further includes a programmable auction server that has a plurality of modules wherein each module may have a TP.